Veterans and Mental Health

Being in combat and being separated from your family can be stressful. The stress can put service members and veterans at risk for mental health problems. These include anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder, depression, and substance use. Suicide can also be a concern. This workshop will provide information, tools and resources to enhance the care provided to all age cohorts across the veteran community.

Speaker

Scott Colin Winter, MSW, LSW, CDCA is a licensed social worker and Honorably discharged military veteran with extensive experience of service in mental health advocacy, education, and philanthropy throughout central Ohio. He is currently in private practice in Columbus. Colin was the co-founder and Executive Director of Run Down the Demons, a nonprofit organization working to engage with key leaders throughout central Ohio to address veterans issues. He was instrumental in establishing the Advanced Certificate in Serving Veterans and their Families program for the College of Social Work at The Ohio State University in 2017 and was also a finalist in the Presidents Prize at The Ohio State University in 2017. He received his Master of Social Work from Ohio State in 2018.

Objectives

At the conclusion of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Define who/what constitutes being a veteran
- Identify common military terminology
- Discuss the transition out of the military and how mental health may be impacted
- Describe the issues of stigma veterans sometimes face
- Identify community mental health resources for veterans
- Recognize therapeutic interventions that have been identified as successful with this population
