The Cost of Caring: Co-dependency in Social Services

Many social services professionals report a desire to help others and advocacy for vulnerable populations as the primary motivators for their professional choices. While these altruistic desires are admirable, they also create vulnerabilities for those in the helping professions. Since co-dependency is often present in relationships which are unbalanced, social services professionals are continually challenged with balancing the needs of their consumer and maintain professional boundaries. This training will explore the phenomenon of co-dependency as it applies to helping professionals. The presentation will highlight common pitfalls and ethical dilemmas specific to co-dependent behavior. In addition, this curriculum will offer practical strategies to prevent and manage co-dependent behaviors.

Speaker

Dr. Brian L. Bethel is a Professional Clinical Counselor-Supervisor (LPCC-S), a Licensed Chemical Dependency Counselor (LCDCIII) and a Registered Play Therapist-Supervisor (RPT-S) with specialized training in counseling children, adolescents, and families. Dr. Bethel earned his PhD in Counselor Education and supervision from Ohio University where he also earned dual Master's degrees in Clinical Counseling and Rehabilitation Counseling. With over twenty years of clinical practice, Dr. Bethel brings a diversity of strengths to his clinical practice. As the founder and director of Interplay Counseling and Consultation Services, LLC, Dr. Bethel operates a private counseling practice and provides educational services to community organizations. He has dedicated much of his professional career to working with individuals impacted by trauma and continues as a mental health clinician for a Child Advocacy Center that serves children and families across southern and southeastern Ohio.

Objectives
